

PRESS RELEASE | FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE | 07/24/2009 8:00 AM

American Speed Company Introduces New Accessory

A timeless classic design for new gauge surround

PLYMOUTH, Michigan – American Speed Company is a bit different than most street rod companies. With a management team deep-rooted in the Detroit auto industry, and a CEO who was a designer and creator of concept cars, it's no wonder they can produce exquisite components like their new gauge surround for classic rods.

Details include a gorgeous engine-turned finish on the main panel with a satin-finished panel on the lower portion, separated and surrounded by a polished bezel. The outer shape is pure nostalgia and the look is totally unique.

American Speed manufactures the Speed 33 convertible, the industry's only all-steel '33 convertible-roadster with a fully integrated convertible top that stows under a hard tonneau and power window, and this gauge surround is one of the optional accessories. But not to worry...if you don't have a Speed 33 on order, they'll be happy to sell you one of these gauge surrounds for your own car.

The new gauge surround is now available directly from the company or through any of its many dealers (be sure to ask about gauges with convex-glass, as shown). Dealer inquiries are welcome.

About American Speed Company: Founded in 2006, American Speed Company is an automotive and product development company started by Industry design veteran, D. Mark Trostle. Headquartered in Plymouth, Mich., the company offers everything from personalized components to complete vehicle design. For more information, visit www.americanspeedcompany.com. Contact: Kevin McLoughlin at 734.451.1141 or email, kevin.mcloughlin@americanspeedcompany.com

Photo Editor's Note: High-resolution images of Mark Trostle as well as the American Speed Company logo and Speed33™ logo are available for download from the American Speed Company web site at www.americanspeedcompany.com.

###